Scimitar

"It costs so much to be a free human being that there are very few who have the enlightenment or the courage, to pay the price . . . One has to abandon altogether the search for security, and reach out to the risk of living with both arms. One has to embrace the world like a lover. One has to accept pain as a condition of existence. One has to court doubt and darkness as the cost of knowing. One needs a will stubborn in conflict, but apt always to total acceptance of every consequence of living . . . "

A simple truth and one which became increasingly evident to many students at PHHS during 1974-75 was learning that interaction and involvement with other people was necessary to the search for and formation of his own individual personality.

In a school of more than 1300 students, one had to choose certain people to be more than just faces in the crowd. One hoped, too, that others would recognize that his identity was somehow unique and valuable to them.

Whether it took place over a hamburger at Jimmie's or during that long bus ride to school, sharing problems and feelings with friends taught one how to ask for help and how to help others. So allow yourself the freedom to grow SOCIALLY.

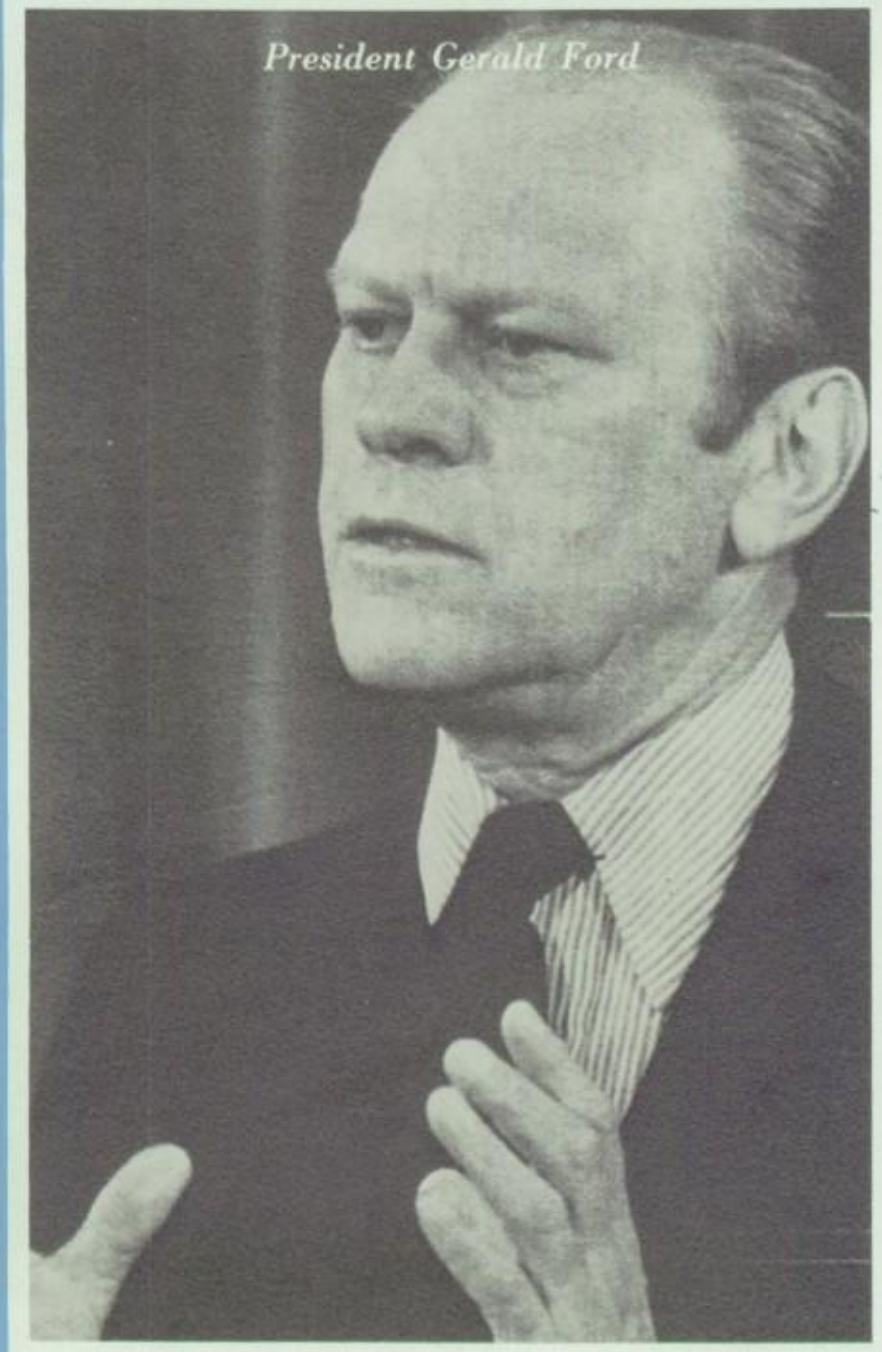
Amnesty 1/31/75

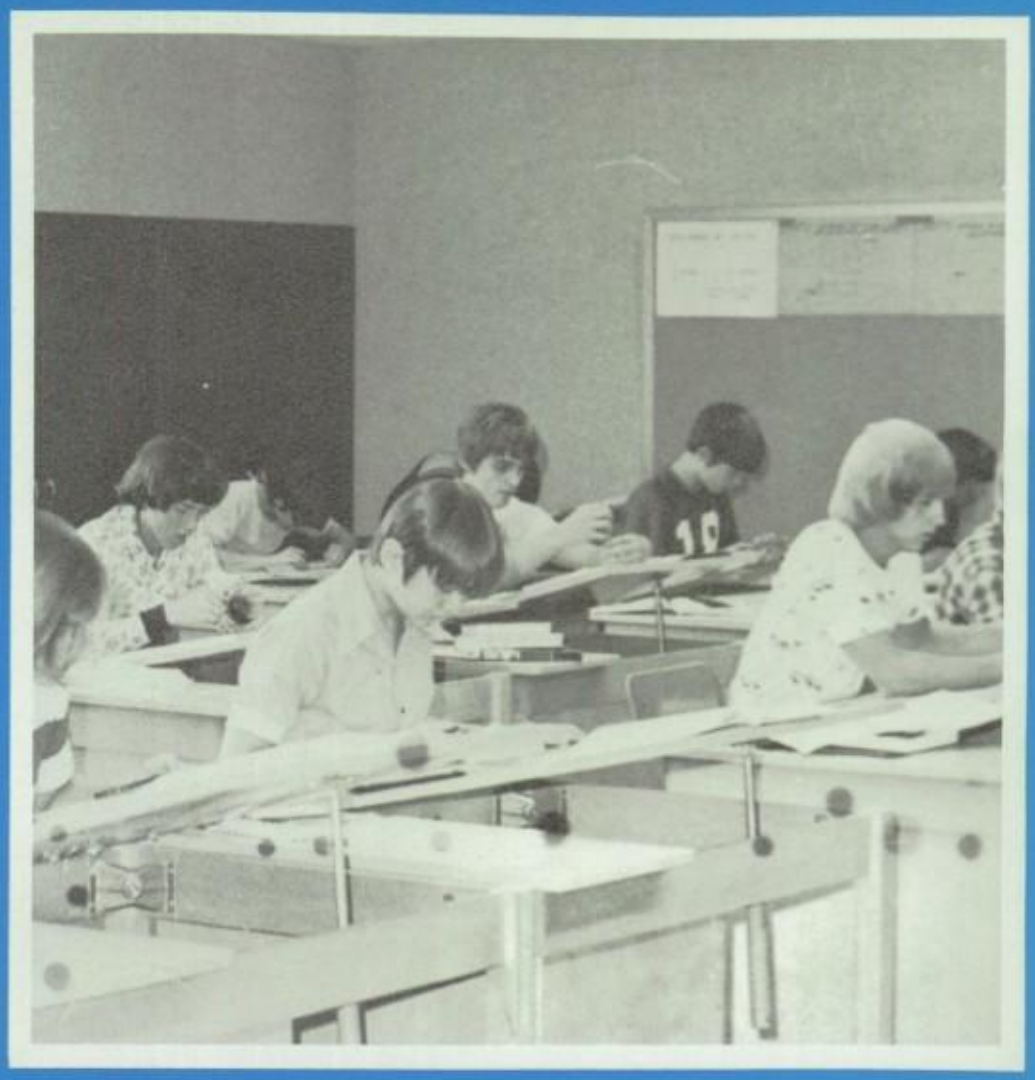


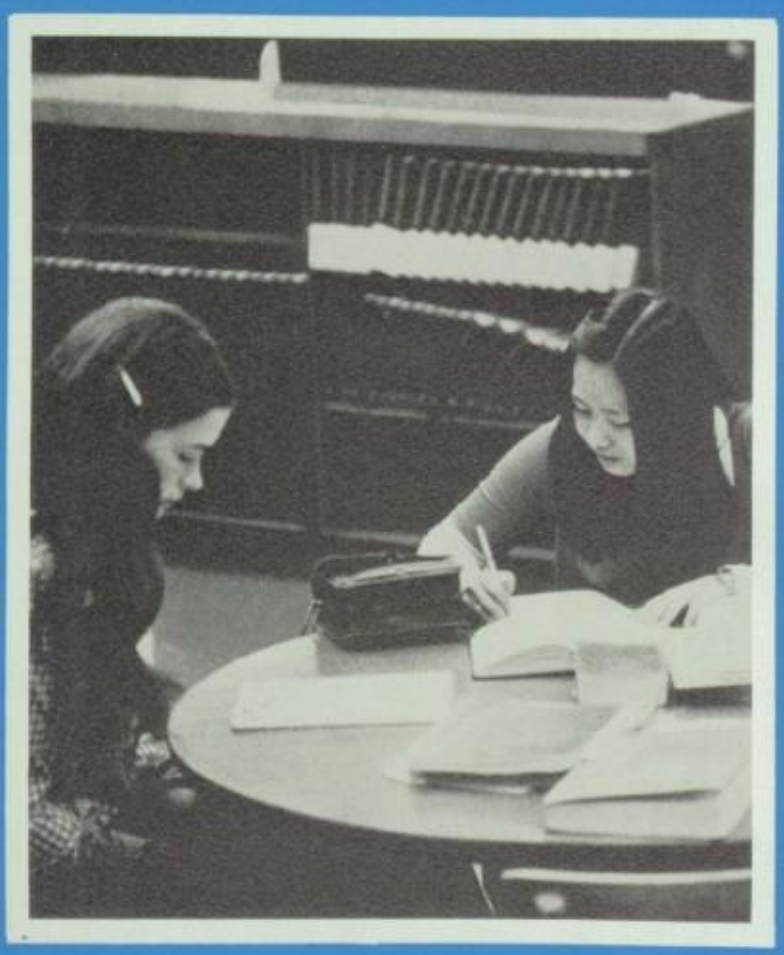
President Gerald Ford

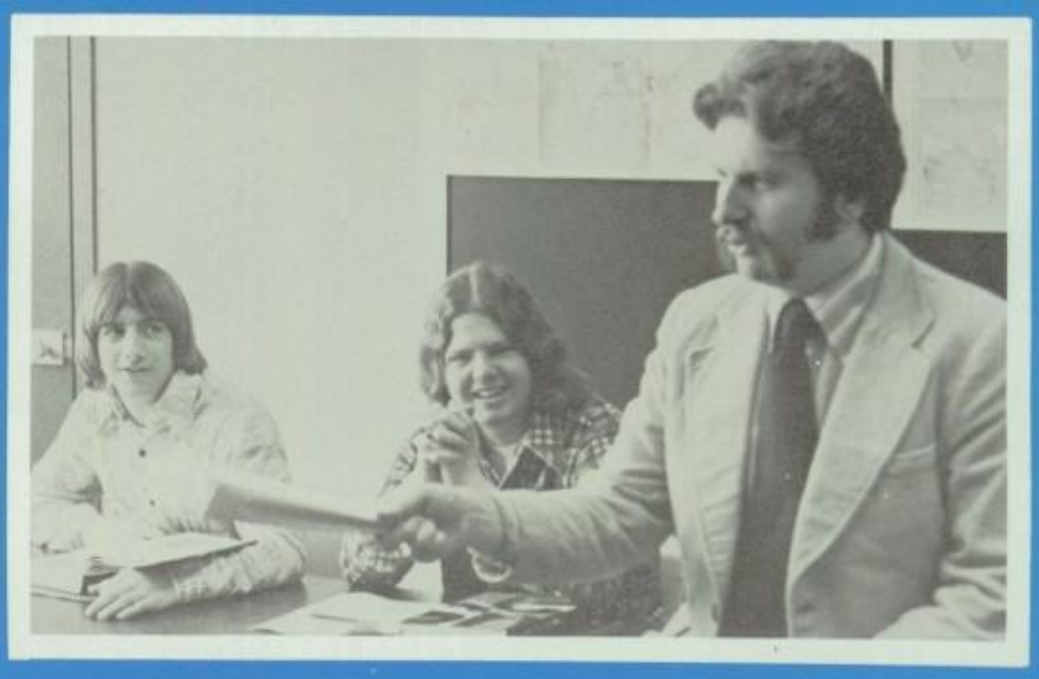
Nixon's resignation, the new Ford administration, inflation, unemployment, the world food shortage, the energy crisis, and amnesty—such were the issues in the headlines of 1974-75.

Students at PHHS were concerned with these issues as they realized that their lives were often directly influenced by the actions of someone in Washington, D.C. or Saudi Arabia. The lowering of thermostats and high gas prices affected nearly everyone, as did increased food costs, a result of inflation in the United States. Unemployment continued to spiral upward, and many PHHS'ers found it difficult to obtain those part-time jobs they had counted on.

Though the situation during 1974-75 seemed shaky at times, it served to be beneficial to students as they realized that they must work to create their futures. They learned that tomorrow's world must be built on today's often harsh lessons. So allow yourself the freedom to gain wisdom through CURRENT AFFAIRS.







From the time one is small and wonders why grass is green and things fall down instead of up, one is involved in the never-ending human process known as the search for knowledge. Due to the very make-up of man's personality, he, unconsciously or otherwise, never stops seeking answers to his own questions or the mysteries of the world.

The knowledge gained through every day experiences is significant. But so is the knowledge one obtains from his academic endeavors, and no man can be completely satisfied if his education lacks in either category.

The high school years are traditionally the period in one's life when he is most receptive to the acquiring of knowledge. So it is during these years that you must allow some freedom to reach out and grow ACADEMICALLY.

Enduring what seems like endless hours of practice . . . having no time for homework, yet knowing that a C average must be maintained . . . missing meals . . . suffering every ailment from callouses to pulled muscles . . . Surely even the athlete himself sometimes wonders if it's all worthwhile. So why does one choose to participate in athletics?

The answers are varied, but center around one basic idea: Satisfaction. Knowing that he has pushed himself to the very limits of his abilities, one acquires a feeling of accomplishment which is difficult to explain to someone who has never experienced it. There is pride in knowing that one has conditioned his body and is able to serve a bit more accurately or run a little faster than even he imagined.

Through athletics, one acquires self-discipline, responsibility, and respect for oneself as well as for others. So allow yourself the freedom to grow through COMPETITION.

Cross country men bring All-Sports trophy home again

Up and over valleys and through the mud, the Arabs sprinted to the White River Conference victory. After a long hard season, the cross country team, led by Dave Willoughby and MVP Mike Schenk, put it all together to help the school regain the All-Sports trophy.

The P.H.H.S. harriers battled in four dual meets with conference teams to finish at 6 wins and 8 losses. The varsity also ran in three invitationals: Delta, Carmel and Tipton, placing second, fourth and tenth, respectively.

The reserves pushed the long two-and-a-half mile race for a seasonal record of 8 wins and 6 losses.

Philosophies, activities evolve from social and behavioral studies classes

"You have been chosen to select seven people who will travel to a new land and set up a new government. What qualities would you look for in the people you choose?"

This was one of the many thought provoking questions proposed to students in the social studies classes at Pendleton Heights High School. With such techniques, instructors were able to develop the philosophies of the department which were geared to making students aware of various cultures of the world, to show that democracy has responsibilities as well as rights, and to develop an awareness and appreciation for the worth of every individual.

These philosophies were brought out in the many areas of study in social studies offered at P.H.H.S. These areas included U.S. History, Geography, Economics and Current Affairs; also, the behavioral studies of Psychology and Sociology. Government completed the curricular choices.

There were many teaching techniques and devices utilized in these social studies classes. Their purpose was to bring about a more thorough understanding of each subject. Among these sources of help were such things as panel discussions, lectures, team teaching, simulation games and various audio-visual presentations. Speakers were brought into classes for specialized talks and information giving.

To extend their boundaries of instruction, the department offered many night classes to students and adults alike. These classes were structured for the purpose of helping students get caught up after an illness or academic problems, also to offer adults an opportunity to finish their requirements towards a high school diploma. These classes could also be taken just for the sake of enjoyment of the subjects.

With the addition of new instructors, text books, and more visual aids, the department saw numerous changes in 1974-75. Because of such advancements the social studies department foresaw a future which would offer more social studies elective courses, specialized areas of study, and also, a choice of general or college preparatory classes in both elective and required areas.

Throughout the year the social studies department instructors were actively involved with planning the community program for the upcoming Bicentennial celebration in 1975-76.

Southern Indiana tour, stiff competition build outstanding season

By way of an 11-3 varsity record the Arabian racquetmen turned in the most successful tennis season in the history of Pendleton Heights. Overall balance was the key to team strength as the varsity squad was composed almost entirely of senior lettermen.

Touring southern Indiana and competing against various racquet clubs during the summer helped to prepare the netters for the tough schedule that awaited them in the fall. Among the many powerful opponents were such teams as Richmond and North Central who were ranked first and second in the state.

John Edmundson and Kevin Wills were chosen as co-captains while Wills and No. 1 Jerry Smith shared the MVP award. Mike Laird and Wills were selected as co-winner of the Kiwanis Club sponsored "Outstanding Senior Tennis Award." Don Woods set his own record by winning 20 consecutive matches.

The reserve team also had an excellent season finishing with a 9-2 record and coming in first in the Noblesville Invitational. The reserves were usually led by Guy Sisson and Keith Strobel.

Coach Noggle, obviously ecstatic over his team's performance commented "If losing helps to build character, these boys shouldn't have much."

Students choose from wide range in Home Econ.

From Consumer Education and Interpersonal Relations to Tailoring and Child Development–such was the range of courses offered in the ever expanding Home Economics department at PHHS.

One addition to the curriculum in 1974 was the non-major sewing class created for junior and senior girls interested in learning more about sewing. Also, students in the housing class received practical experience in interior design when they decorated the house in Pendle Hill built by the Building Trades Class.

Plans were made for yet another addition. A course in Bachelor Living was proposed for senior boys to prepare them for the responsibilities they may encounter after leaving home.

Senior girls nip strong junior team by two points

Determined to maintain the tradition of staging exciting football games, the junior and senior powderpuff girls picked up right where last year's teams left off.

Having only three practices to get their strategies ready, the seniors, coached by Ken Collins and George King, and the juniors, guided by Steve Cherry, Larry Stoner, and Richard Thompson, put on one of the most entertaining powderpuff games in recent years. Back and forth scoring kept everyone in suspense until the very end. Both teams proved that they had the ability and determination to win as outstanding performances were turned in by Sheila Swinford and Dana Conner for the seniors, and Helen King and Suzi Adair for the juniors.

The final scoring in the game took place with only three seconds remaining on the clock as Karen Strait scored a touchdown for the seniors to give them an 18-16 victory.

Homecoming 1974

Each fall when students return to school there seems to be a certain feeling of excitement in the air. This excitement is due to a curiosity which happens only once a year—Homecoming.

1974 Homecoming was a busy time for everyone. Football players and coaches were concentrating on a winning strategy; class officers were trying to devise a unique float entry and, above all, everyone was wondering who would reign as Homecoming Queen.

Activities got under way on a rainy Friday. The parade formed and marched to the school; fans gathered in the football stands. The football team proved they were competitive, dominating Madison Heights throughout the first half of the ballgame. After a lengthy half-time program, the Pirates rallied and handed the Arabians a heart-breaking defeat.

Homecoming queen candidates and princesses were escorted to the football field at half-time to await the melodramatic announcement. Senior Chris Johnson wept as co-captains Jon Anderson and Joe Huntzinger presented her with roses and crowned her Homecoming Queen of 1974.

Gridders take WRC; first for PHHS men

In true Arabian Spirit the 1974 PHHS team accomplished something not yet achieved in the school's history: the White River Conference Championship in football! The Gridders not only won the title, but they did it with style. Not a single W.R.C. team scored against the mighty Arabians.

The P.H.H.S. gridders not only did well against the W.R.C. teams, but put together their second best season with 7 wins and 3 losses. Previous records were broken this season as the defensive squad held their opponents to only 93 points, while the offensive team averaged 14 points a game. Passing records along with many others fell as the long summer hours paid off.

The team voted Mark Vance as the Most Valuable Player of the season, and Joe Huntzinger and Jon Anderson were elected team captains.

The reserve Gridders worked hard for 5 wins, 2 losses, and 1 tie for the season. Many of the reserves are expected to fill in for the leaving seniors to complete next year's lineup. The freshmen really dug-in-hard to stop all but one team from defeating them, compiling an impressive record of 6 wins, 1 loss, and 1 tie.

Music Man a big success; 120 students participate

Despite sore throats and tired feet, the PHHS Concert Choir finally got it all together to mark the beginning of a busy year with the performances of the award winning production of The Music Man, on November 2 and 3 at the Pendleton Middle School auditorium.

The story was set in River City, Iowa in the year 1912; It revolved around Professor Harold Hill (Bob Hawkins) and his scheme to sell band instruments and uniforms. After the sale, Professor Hill then intended to skip town with the money without forming the band or teaching the kids to play their horns. But, Marian, the librarian (Sheena Current), proved to be the one complication he couldn't handle. He turned the fighting school board (Bruce Fisher, Dan Kasdorf, Scott Reeve, and Sue Warrum) into a Barbershop Quartet and the town gossips (Chris Willhoite, and the gossips (Chris Willhoite, Joy Noble, Julie Hurst, Tina Burton, and Melinda Widener) into a classical dance group. He even managed to stay out of the reach of Mayor Shinn (Roger Manship), as he fell in love with Marian.

The townspeople added much color and gaiety to the show with their singing and dancing numbers. In return for their efforts, the cast received gratification from an audience that seemed enthusiastic as they gave each performance a standing ovation.

A need for information brings about a new department

A new dimension of education was added to Pendleton Heights when the department of communications was created. Although many of the same classes were offered in years past, this was the first time that they were organized into an independent department. Mrs. Klakamp and Mr. Nibarger worked together sharing the responsibilities of department chairmen. Among the classes offered were Radio, Television, Propaganda and Persuasion, Speech, Journalism, School Publications and Mass Media courses.

Students participating in the communications program had the opportunity to utilize various materials to better understand their area of interest. An assortment of magazines, newspapers, and audio-visual equipment were also available for the students' use. The five practicums of this department were WEEM, Hoofprint Staff, Scimitar Staff, and two new additions: The Pendleton Heights News Bureau and Beta. The News Bureau was designed to allow WEEM announcers to obtain more broadcasting experience. Each of these students was required to present the daily announcements. Beta was a school magazine designed by the school publications class, containing poems and other literary works written by students who were willing to share some of their ideas.

The Communications department was formed for the purpose of improving communications on every level.

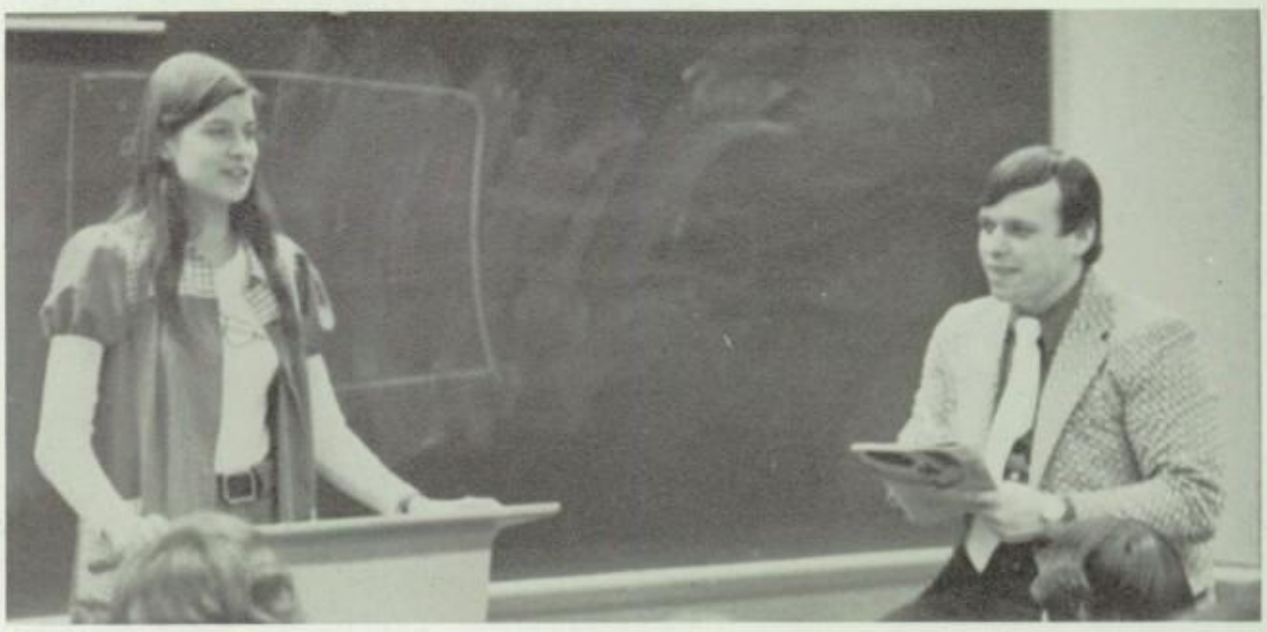
COMMUNICATIONS



WEEM radio sets world record by broadcasting basketball marathon

Radio station WEEM advanced since it was first created three years ago. During the 1974-75 school year, it informed the entire community about important and interesting events occuring within the local area. A wide selection of music was provided in an attempt to satisfy the interest of as many listeners as possible. Those who wished to hear the Pendleton Heights football and basketball games were able to hear them on WEEM.

Each announcer on the school radio was required to take his turn presenting the daily announcements. This practice aided them in broadcasting over the air more freely. One of the more outstanding performances accomplished by WEEM was the broadcasting of the basketball marathon staged by PHHS students. The radio staff managed to broadcast the entire marathon which lasted for one hundred five hours, setting a new world's record for continous coverage of sports event.

The radio station at Pendleton Heights has gradually expanded over the past years. More students seemed to take an interest in communications as the opportunities to actually participate increased.

Hoofprint provides information about student activities

The 1974-75 Hoofprint staff, comprised almost entirely of underclassmen, spent another year attempting to inform the student body of activities at PHHS.

The staff published special issues to exemplify the different moods of the year. Special features and columns were also written about various interests and activities.

Not only did the Hoofprint try to better its journalistic quality, it also tried to improve its printing techniques. PHHS was one of the few schools that printed its newspaper at the school. The work was done completely by students.

'75 Scimitar utilizes more color, special effects

Selling ads to merchants, scheduling underclass picture takes and retakes, and finally delivering almost 1000 picture packets, organizing every group in school into one small area for their membership picture, visiting every classroom and attending activities of every extra-curricular group were the essential tasks that occupied the time of Scimitar staff members. After these requirements were met, pictures were placed into position and copy was written to present a record of the 1974-75 school year.

Staffers attempted to utilize techniques to create interesting as well as accurate reporting of student activities. The use of color was more extensive than ever before. Background inking, special type blocks and artwork were added to complete a more contemporary approach to double-spread lay-outs.

Mistakes were made and corrected, pictures were taken and lost. Hours were spent after school finalizing each page. As deadline time approached staff members felt the pressures of schoolwork plus Scimitar requirements.

By June, the job was nearly finished. Eight hundred and fifty books were printed in Montgomery, Alabama and shipped to Pendleton Heights to await approval as they were distributed to the students.

Students continue to take advantage of the math curriculum offerings

Nine different types of Math courses from Consumer Math to Trigonometry gave students a wide field in which to participate. Mass lectures, group work, and guest lecturers added a uniqueness to the typical classroom instruction.

Mr. Terry Johns and Mr. John Rhodes, newcomers to Pendleton Heights, joined the other members of the Math department in the areas of Consumer Math and Algebra, respectively.

This year, the Math department had two major projects; textbook adoption and curriculum revision in the Consumer Math area. A change in the Consumer Math courses proposed for the future would reorganize the classes into four semester courses: a required course in "Arithmetic Skills" followed by an elective of "Money", "Management", or Basic Algebra. Department members felt these changes would update their program.

To provide the opportunity for students to explore mathematics–its theories, its applications, and to evaluate the analytical ability in abstract reasoning was the Math department's philosophy. Cooperation and hard work by both students and teachers in all areas helped to bring about more opportunities in Math with many probable changes for future years.

Signs were seen around Pendleton in late August as members of the community showed their support of the "Green Machine." Getting their year's activities underway in August, the band members placed 25th in the State Fair Contest. The group traveled to Marion where they participated in the Veterans' Day parade and received a first place sweepstakes trophy. Appearances were also made at the Anderson Veterans' Parade and Southport School Marching Contest.

Marching performances were given at five football games and the Pep band provided additional entertainment at the home basketball games.

Convocations were made even more interesting as the new Jazz Rock Ensemble presented contemporary music.

Traditional and phase English is offered to meet student's interests

Believing in the philosophy that a student should be able to take the courses that are most meaningful to him, the English department of Pendleton Heights High School continued to offer its wide range of subjects last year. Phase elective classes were again offered to juniors and seniors, while freshmen and sophomores continued to take the traditional, all-year English class in preparation for the phase elective courses. A night class in English was offered for those who were unable to attend school during the day.

With the wide variety of classes available, several different techniques were utilized by English teachers. Field trips and individual study were among the most often used techniques. Trips to the Ball State University Library, Indiana Repertory Theater, and Art Museum were taken to further enrich students' knowledge of particular subjects. Individual study was a common practice in reading courses to help students gain a better understanding of literature.

The English department at PHHS has continued to make a tremendously wide range of subjects available to students. With this extensive set of classes, students have the opportunity to make the most of their interests.

Entertainment was provided for the student body often by the talents of many of Pendleton Heights' own familiar faces. Programs were presented periodically during home room hours for those students interested in purchasing a ticket. The Mat Maids convo presented such attractions as Mrs. Pat Miller and a young group of professional dancers from Arthur Murray Dance School.

Wes-Del Invitational highlight of girls' volleyball

With strong varsity experience plus the able support of the reserve team, the PHHS volleyball girls ended another successful season.

The varsity finished with a record of 8-2. Jill Locke was the leading scorer with a total of 89 points, followed by Jan Mock with 70.

In sectional action the girls defeated Frankton with scores of 15-4, 15-3 to win the first round. The girls then met a strong Madison Heights team and were upset in the second round. For the first time, Pendleton Heights participated in the Wes-Del Invitational and placed third ahead of Highland, New Castle, and Yorktown.

The reserves finished with a record of 9-1 as Cheryl Fish led all scoring with 72 points. On the basis of the successful '74 season, Coach Mary Ruth Farthing predicted: "With the very strong reserve team we had this year and the four returning varsity girls, the prospects for next year look bright."

Champs

The Arabian matmen had their finest season in school history. They grappled to a 10-2 duel meet record and to championship in both the White River Conference and the Madison County Tournaments. In addition to posting a fine regular season record the wrestlers won the second consecutive Sectional crown and placed second to state champions Muncie South in the 29 team New Castle Regional.

Traditionally the Most Valuable Wrestler award goes to the wrestler recording the greatest number of match points. This year, however, Regi Holt and Dave Stephenson shared the award, both having distinguished themselves by setting records in pins and points. Team members elected seniors Dan Taylor and Ray Fish as their co-captains. Quoting Coach King, "This was the finest team we have had yet."

An old fashioned Christmas; sculpture for PHHS

An old fashioned Christmas was the theme of the 1974 Christmas Dance sponsored by the Sunshine Society. Some couples danced to the music of Reel-N-Kyte, while others snacked on refreshments that were furnished by the members. The highlight of the evening was the crowning of Sandy Markle as Queen. Other candidates were Sherry Barnhart, Lana Garcia, and Robin Mathews.

Sunshine had many activities throughout the year including: candle sales; all school convo; Daddy-date night; Ma, Pa, and Me night; and the Senior Honor Dinner.

Although the candle sale did not reach its goal this year the club was still able to purchase many items for the school and was also able to help a needy family.

The officers in Sunshine Society were Sandy Markle, President; Carol Lewellyn, Vice President; Lisa Davis, Recording Secretary; Jan Fisher, Corresponding Secretary; Sherry Barnhart, Treasurer. Sponsors for the Sunshine group were Mrs. Wynant, Mrs. Custer, and Mrs. Dailey.

Basketball

The hardwood action at Pendleton Heights brought in a large crowd to see the home team play. Working hard on all stages of the game the Arabians showed improvement. The PHHS round ballers battled hard against the opponents they faced. The crowd saw three games that were decided by only one point when the final horn blew. Two more games were decided by one point in tournament action. These games were the W.R.C., where Lapel just managed to pull it out at the last few seconds, and the sectional where PHHS really put things together, but Alexandria managed to sink the winning shot at the last second. The team, led by Kevin McCrocklin and Jon Anderson, ended their season with a record of 7 wins and 15 losses. Mike Laird was voted by his teammates as "Most Valuable Player", while J.D. Rogers was "Most Improved."

The Reserve Team played many tough games but had trouble toward the end of the season. The team, coached by Dennis Wallace, ended their season with 9 wins and 11 losses. The highlight of the season was when the team became White River Conference Champs.

Repetition of skills stressed in business; practical experience gained

Timed writings, takes, and ledgers were common terms used by personnel in the Business Department at P.H.H.S. These terms refered to the wide area of business-oriented courses offered to P.H.H.S. students in 1974-75.

This wide area of study was comprised of the following; General Business, Business Law, Business Machines, and Business English. Also, Typing I, II, Bookkeeping, and Shorthand I, II. Completing the list was Intensive Office Laboratory, a simulated on-the-job training program. Night classes in Typing I and Bookkeeping were another source of learning which were offered this year.

Many techniques and devices were used to further understanding of each subject. Films, guest speakers, field trips, practice materials, and drills were of frequent occurence. The department felt repetition of learned skills was of great importance.

The department prepared to offer Advanced Bookkeeping and Consumer Education classes next year. They also planned to incorporate a Distributive Education program in the future.

The Business Education program and its instructors at P.H.H.S. endeavored to meet the needs of its students vocationally; by providing a planned sequence of activities and learnings throughout the student's high school program, and non-vocationally; by providing knowledge necessary to all individuals living in society today and skills that may be useful to any student regardless of his occupation.

Arabians don strange apparel to show spirit

Continuing a trend that was begun a year ago, students at PHHS actively displayed their school spirit during 1974-75.

Whenever dress-up days were staged to generate enthusiasm before a sporting event, proud Arabians supported their teams by wearing their clothes backwards, dressing as children, or dressing for the traditional crazy green-and-white day.

During sectional week, Mrs. Gray's classes again won the plaque for the best decorated room, and the junior class captured the over-all spirit award.

On-the-job training provided by variety of courses in Industrial Arts.

Down the long east wing of PHHS came different noises. Whether it be the sound of a radial arm saw, a car backfiring or even the sharp crackling of a shorted circuit, these noises were evidence of the continual activity in the Industrial Arts department.

Noise, however, was not the only product which resulted from the variety of courses offered in this department. In the woods and metal shop, one could seem many pieces of furniture and metal tools that the students made. In the electricity room, students learned to trace, analyze and produce highly sophisticated circuits. The printing classes taught different ideas for advertising and methods for lay-out, while in drafting, students designed and scaled houses and other buildings. Throughout the year, the agriculture mechanics shop showed Future Farmers new ideas for their farm shop. The auto mechanics shop provided future mechanics with on-the-job training.

Another branch of the department was the Vocational Building Trades class. These students built a house for sale to a family and applied their profits toward next year's expenses.

BB girls find key to success after disappointing start

The 1974-75 girls' basketball team came out the victors in their last four out of five games, after a rather doubtfull start consisting of six straight losses. Coach Joyce Gaddis believed that this improvement resulted from improved ball handling and an increase in the girls' confidence.

Senior Jill Locke was the leading scorer on the varsity squad with an 11-game total of 149 points. The reserve squad finished with a record of 3 wins, 6 losses, and was led in scoring by Lynn Gray with 102 points in nine games.

Prospects for the 1975-76 teams looked very encouraging since three of the starting five will return and some of the younger players gained valuable experience on the reserve squad.

Increased participation helps create winning season

The 1974-75 girls' gymnastics team, coached by Pat Miller, successfully completed its second season at Pendleton Heights.

Girls were able to compete on three levels of competition: as beginners and intermediates, who performed compulsory exercises, and as optionals, who performed more advanced exercises with background in dance and aerial work. Competitive gymnastics consisted of four events: balance beam, uneven bars, vaulting, and floor exercise.

The optional level won six meets with one loss going to their toughest competitor, Wes-Del. The intermediate level finished with a 5-2 record, and the beginners' season improved. They won three of their last four meets to end with a 3-4 record.

Coach Miller was optimistic when asked about next year's team. She noted the strengths of the seven returning letter winners and voiced optimism of seeing new power with the incoming freshmen.

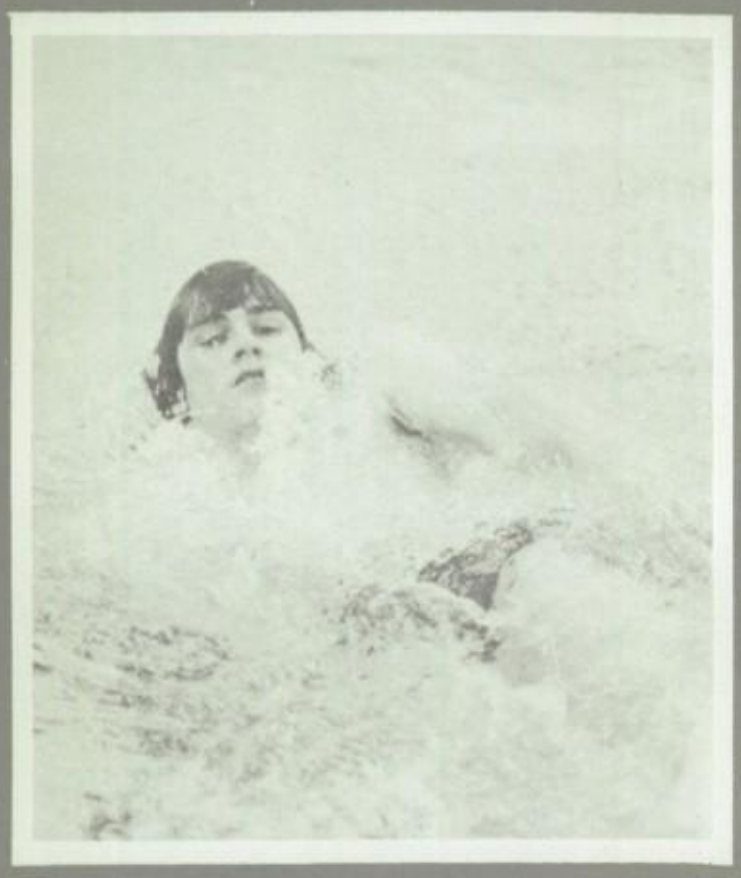
Swimming



The Tankmen, under their new coach Robert Gibbons, ended a successful season with 7 wins and 4 losses. The team was very young for the '74-'75 season, as 10 of the 17 swimmers were freshmen. The team worked hard and turned in many impressive times. In the 500 free style, Scott Reske broke the school record, while Doug Warrum broke the records in the 200 individual medly, the 200 free style, and the 100 free style. Based on the good times that were turned in, PHHS swimmers placed second in the Yorktown relays, bring home the first trophy ever in swimming for Pendleton Heights. The only senior of the team, Dave Willoughby, was named Team Captain, and Doug Warrum was named Most Valuable Swimmer.

BB-Radio marathon generates community spirit

A world record! Many people have tried to set new records, playing pinball, on a seesaw, playing "Monopoly", whatever imaginable, there's a record for it, and all can be found in the Guinness Book of World Records.

Our own school, Pendleton Heights, has a place in that record book.

Over Christmas vacation, 26 boys played basketball for a total of 105 hours, scoring more than 23,000 points, and raising $2,785.00 which was donated to the Madison County Ambulance Fund. Although only juniors and seniors participated in the game, another group from WEEM radio broke the record for continuous sports broadcasting. Without either of the two teams, the marathon would have been impossible.

Mark Vance thought of the idea with the help of some close friends. In the beginning, the thought seemed to be impossible, but as time went on, more and more students became interested, and plans were made.

The basketball marathon began December 26, and the record was broken at 4:00 p.m. on December 30. The seniors outscored the juniors 12, 012 to 11,632, although the boys proved that the most important figures were those of the money to be donated to the ambulance fund.

All-School play tells high school teachers' story

After long weeks of rehearsal and despite an opening night snow storm, the All-School play, "Are Teachers Human?", was performed on March 15 and 16.

Sponsored by Dave Oldham and Susan Sporinsky, the play revolved around a high school setting and comically told the teachers' point of view. Tryouts for "Are Teachers Human?" were held as early as mid-January and rehearsal was immediately started. Darlene Savage played the role of a young English teacher and Alan Esche portrayed the principal of the high school.

In return for their seven weeks of practice, the cast received a standing ovation after both performances.

P.E. department adds gymnastics, weight training

The Physical Education department at Pendleton Heights again expanded in order to meet students' interests. For boys interested in body building techniques, weight training programs were introduced. Courses in rhythmics and gymnastics were offered in the girls' P.E. department.

Fitness, participation, and general knowledge of skills in individual, and team sports summed up the general philosophy of the department. Physical Education instructors employed various teaching techniques, and student assistants helped to carry out the different activities.

With drug abuse still a major problem, the health classes attempted to accurately inform students of the situation and hopefully provide some answers to individuals' questions.

Girls' swimming gains momentum during 1974-75

Under the guidance of a new coach, Miss Vickie Rardin, the girls' swim team began practice for the rough season which awaited them. Composed of 14 swimmers, seven of which were seniors, the girls performed well against much larger teams and finished with a record of 2 wins and 5 losses.

Jill Hadley and Sally Craig consistently scored high for the team, and Jill placed third in sectional diving to advance to the state competition.

PH students excel in areas ranging from swimming to "trouble shooting

Long hours of work and practice and a spirit of steadfast determination were the ingredients Pendleton Heights students put together to come up with successes during the 1974-75 school year. Accomplishments in diverse areas honored both the winners and the school.

Divisional titles were brought home by the cheerleading squads who began practice in early summer. In State Fair competition, the varsity placed 13th of 160 teams, while the reserves placed an imprsive 4th of 80. Both the varsity and freshman squads placed first in Madison County and the reserves earned another first in the Tipton County Contest. In addition, the freshman girls retained first place honors for PHHS at the Kokomo Open.

Only 38 seconds separated the Pendleton Heights "trouble shooters" from first place in the Plymouth-sponsored State Championship contest. Working over a "bugged" car, the team proved their competency and speed, setting new records for the school.

Over 11,844 lenghts were completed in the first Swim-a-thon held in the PHHS pool. Students and school personnel from the high school and elmentary schools as well as parents participated in the event in an effort to raise money for the new timing devices needed by the swim teams.

Winners at the PHHS Science Fair did not stop there. Phil Woodbury and Teresa Whelchel qualified for the Regional Science Fair held at Ball State by placing first and second in the local contest. Phil's bacteriology exhibit, "The effects of Specific Inhibitors on the Morphology of Serratia Marcessens," earned him first place and was part of the national contest in Oklahoma.

Three athletes participated in out-of-season competition throughout the state, winning titles and setting records. Sophomore Tony Stader wrestled in several invitationals, winning first place in his weight category. Mike Schenck, a junior, broke records in distance races as he joined the competition at Bloomington and Terre Haute. Senior Matt Golden traveled to nearby states for track events and also to an international meet in Canada. Matt also won the Bronco relays and placed second in the Hoosier relays.

P.H.H.S. Science Dept. constantly expands program

New educational trends in the field of science were employed by instructors at P.H.H.S. this year. With the new approaches, the seemingly impossible task of learning science seemed less of a problem for most students.

The science department of P.H.H.S. was constantly changing and expanding its curriculum to meet the needs of the students at the present time and hopefully for the future.

The courses in science were widespread enough to satisfy nearly everyone, ranging from I.P.S. to Physics and also offering two years of Biology and two years of Chemistry. Science related math and independent research courses were available in night school to aid science students in their classes.

Lab orientation, team teaching, mass lectures, and class discussions were some of the techniques used for student interest and benefit.

Future plans for the P.H.H.S. science department include a new class which will be offered for students interested in astronomy.

It was evident that many changes took place over the past year. New teaching techniques, with the addition of new courses, helped make this school's science area of instruction both extensive and beneficial to all involved.

Students turn to friends, activities to relieve school pressures

Ever notice how students always seemed to be gathering together? In a school of over 1300, some of this crowding was inevitable—in other words, one didn't ask to be placed in a class with 25 other people or to eat lunch with a couple of hundred fellow students. But upon reflection of the 1974-75 school year, one realized that much of the grouping was, in fact, a matter of preference . . .

Mornings at PHHS saw students arriving by car, bus, motorcycle, bicycle, on foot, or for some, not at all. Half asleep, they made their way into the building and to their lockers, then it was time to meet with friends and perhaps brighten a rather bleak morning. Halls were filled with groups of students discussing everything from the events of the previous evening or plans for the weekend to biology reports and what clubs were meeting during homeroom. Then the 8:10 bell rang and everyone was off for their first hour class.

The lunchtime break was looked forward to as a time to relax from schoolwork and once again meet with friends to re-cap the day's events to that point. Some students proceeded to eat their usual two Type A lunches, while others filled up on their daily quota of cookies and milk. After eating, it was either out to the main hall, up to the student center for snacks, or outside to take in some fresh air, weather permitting.

Once back in classes, the afternoon seemed to pass quickly. Time was spent vigorously working in classes or studying in study halls. For some senior students, the afternoon enabled them to go home or off to jobs.

The bell at 3:08 sent everyone out of classes and out of the building in a mad rush. Back into cars or onto buses, another schoolday was ended. Perhaps the evening hours would provide even more opportunities for friends to gather together.

Language department has new foreign exchange program offering

German I was a new area of study added to the foreign language department at Pendleton Heights during 1974-75. This made three available foreign languages: French, German, and Spanish.

Each of the languages was taught by combining an audio-lingual approach with a traditional approach. The teachers felt that this provided a grammatical base as well as teaching students to communicate orally. The department felt that language study should lead to skills in using the language along with appreciation of the countries where it is spoken. Each of the languages had a club as a co-curricular experience.

The department also set up a foreign exchange student program. This year the department was fortunate enough to receive three students, Mario Lobo from Recife, Brazil, Miriam Drpic from Punta Arenas, Chile, and Wako Ishida from Osako, Japan.

For a first, the Spanish IV class traveled to the Pendleton Elementary to teach a mini-course of Spanish. This proved to be beneficial not only to the 5th grade students, but also provided a chance for the Spanish teachers to experience passing on a little of the language they had been studying.

The department believed that a background in foreign language would be quite profitable to each student. By learning about other cultures and new languages, one is prepared to be more open and to accept people of different cultures.

Three foreign language clubs render many activities for PHHS students

Spanish, French, and German were three cultural clubs offered at PHHS during 1974-75. In order to be eligible for membership, one had to have taken at least one year of the language. Each club strived to enlighten students of their various cultures and centered meetings around the native countries.

For the first time, the French Club and Spanish Club held a special joint meeting in which they exchanged information about their differing cultures and learned a bit of the other language.

Spanish Club members were quite active again as they collected newspapers and sponsored numerous bake sales. The club's earnings helped send 15 students and two sponsors to Mexico for 10 days over spring vacation. This group attended a bullfight and visited the pyramids of Tothuacan. Traveling from there to Acapulco, they spent much of their time soaking up the Mexican sun. The travelers reported that the trip was exciting as well as educational as they were able to observe first hand the culture which they had studied. The annual Spanish Fiesta was held on April 19, and its theme centered around the Legends of the Incas.

French Club helped send Carol Lewellyn to France where she lived with a family from June to August. The club hopes to send three students to France in the summer of 1976. The French Club's answer to the Spanish Fiesta was the annual Folies-Bergere which was held on April 26. Members enjoyed fine French cuisine and entertainment was provided.

The new German Club organized in January of 1975 and members concentrated on election of officers, projects selection, and planned for future activities. As the study of German is more firmly established at PHHS, members hope to see their club expand and are interested in sponsoring trips to Germany.

Livestock & Dairy Judging Team advance to nationals

Some people may have thought of Vocational Agriculture as a class to teach young men new ways of farming, to help feed the fast growing population. There was more than this to be gained by Vo-Ag students.

Since the FFA Chapter of Pendleton Heights began in 1971, the livestock, dairy, poultry, and crops judging teams have remained undefeated in county competition. Also, in the five years of their existence these four teams have competed in five district contests, four years of state judging competition, and the Livestock and Dairy Judging Teams have competed in two national contests.

This year the Livestock Judging Team was crowned National Champions, first in the nation. It was obvious to see that the Vocational Agriculture classes did not stop in room 119.

Classes continued to travel all over the United States to find new and better ways to raise and produce the foods needed to satisfy the world's needs.

Golf helps to capture the All Sports Trophy

Finishing up strong with the WRC championship was a tradition continued at PHHS as the golf team really "swung" into action. Coach Steele, in his first year of coaching golf at PHHS, prepared the team to defeat the number one team in the State, Yorktown, in White River Conference Action.

Sophomore Guy Sisson led the young team with the lowest average, allowing the outlook for the golf team to appear bright. In addition, golf wins helped to capture the All-sports-Championship trophy for PHHS.

Art students compete in regional, national contests

The Art department at PHHS continued to provide students interested in this area a wide variety of class offerings during 1974-75. Courses ranged from Drawing and Design to Weaving and Sculpture.

Individuals in the art program gained recognition for both themselves and the school throughout the year. Students receiving honorable mention at the Regional Scholastic Art Awards were Linda Flatt, Becky Cody, Jan Hull, Candy Franklin, and Brenda Wyatt, who received two honorable mentions. Robyn Wilson Cravens earned a Gold Key and her work also won at the National Scholastic Art Awards in New York City.

New Castle win proves highlight of girls' tennis season

After losing three of their first four meets, the girls' tennis team became selfish and ended one of their most successful seasons in recent years with a record of 7-3. Perhaps even a better indication of over-all team strength was the fact that the girls won five of their meets by a lopsided score of 7-0.

The team was composed almost entirely of senior letterwinners, and competition for positions on the team was very keen. Leading the team in singles was Jill Locke, followed by Marcia Harvey, Dana Conner, Janie Hofer, and Sally Craig. Doubles teams were composed of Chris Johnson—Amy Noel, Lisa Evans—Jan Mock, and occasionally Suzi Adair—Jody Dowden.

Coach Joyce Gaddis felt the highlight of the season was the defeating of long time rival New Castle by a 6-1 score. Commenting on next year's team, she felt that spots on the team would be wide open, and that some of the underclassmen showed good potential.

Girls' track adds to ever-growing athletic program

Despite all the shin splints, light headedness, and sore muscles, the girls did pull through with the first organized Girls' track team this year.

Miss Rardin, as the new coach, worked hard on her own time to get all the girls in shape for their first meet.

Mr. Crosley provided new sweats, green shorts, and green and white t-shirts which created a feeling of unity among the team members in addition to adding interest.

Running the mile, Lynn Gray lettered pulling 27 points for the year. She was the only runner to place in the sectional where she received 6th place.

Although the girls didn't have a winning year, they worked hard to perform their best, and become part of the Pendleton Heights Athletic Department.

Advanced Biology students take trip to Brown County

With bags packed and notebooks ready, the bus left with 27 Advanced Biology students for Brown County. This field trip was to be an educational adventure as well as an enjoyable one.

The sponsors, Mr. Moore and family and Mr. Ashburn, went and supervised the new challenge in learning. It took many days of planning and extensive preparation for the sponsors as well as the students.

A 15' by 15' plot was assigned to every 3 students and then the work started. In each plot the students had to go into very presice detail ranging from the ants to the trees and their sizes.

After investigating the plot, the students came home with even more to be discussed with the facts that they found.

6 in a row

The cindermen of PHHS struck again. The WRC championship fell to the Arabians for the sixth straight year. The meet started out with the trackmen behind, but as the evening wore on, the team started showing what they had to capture the title. The team's three winners, Mike Schenck in the mile, Dave Willoughby in the 440-yard dash, and double winner Matt Golden in the pole vault and low hurdles contributed to the depth of the team which ended in a trophy, a victory lap and a dunking in the pool for the coach.

The Arabians also performed well to take the annual PHHS 8-team Invitational. Many new records were recorded during the year as Scott Taylor clicked through the high hurdles; Mike Schenck recorded in the mile, Schenck and Kevin Burke led in the 880, the discuss was thrown further than before by Greg Bryant, Matt Golden reached record heights in the pole vault and Doug Chandler raced to a new 220 record. The mile relays team of Mark Boram, Kevin Burke, Joe Kunkle and Dave Willoughby set a new record. The 880 relay team of Steve Lenz, Terry Hensly, Scott Taylor and Doug Chandler tied the old school record.

Baseball team has strong spring season; seek WRC championship

Under the guidance of two new coaches, Mr. Johns and Mr. Broughton, the varsity baseball team ended its spring season with a 9-10 record. The defeating of county rivals Anderson and Madison Heights were the most gratifying victories, not to mention edging Marion, 2-1. Marion had only been defeated twice, once by No. 1 rated Lafayette Jeff and once by sixth rated Blackford County. Coach Johns cited Ken Shepherd, whose batting average was about .470 and who played well in center field, as a contributing factor in the Arabian victories. White River Conference action was to start in the summer, and the PHHS team was looking forward to its first WRC championship.

The reserve team, led by Coach Wallace, had a strong spring season and finished with a record of 7 wins and 4 losses.

Prom in the gym creates a junior dream come true

Dream on, dream on, dream on, dream until your dreams come true. "Dream on" was the theme of the 1975 Junior-Senior Prom, where the juniors' dream came true! The Prom was held in the gym for the first time in Pendleton Heights history. The juniors spent five days decorating the area for the formal dance lasting only three short hours.

The decorations began at the entrance with a red carpet to lead couples to the front door where two doormen awaited all arrivals. Three fountains were placed in the main hall and gym to add a special touch to all surroundings. Hung from the ceiling and strung on trees around the serving area were 600 hand-made roses. Buying two kits and a few extras, the Class of '76 covered the gym in such a way that it appeared as a beautiful starry night.

Calvary Bash from Cincinnati, Ohio came and played a variety of music to add a unique atmosphere to the dance.

Crowned King and Queen for the 1975 Junior-Senior Prom were Charlie Knuckles and Kim Frazee, and their court was Prince J.D. Rogers and Princess Lisa Davis. The other king candidates for this year's prom were Alan Esche and Kevin McCrocklin. Queen candidates were Chris Johnson and Sandy Markle. Also, the junior candidates for prince were Scott Berline, Dave Parker, and Phil Woodbury. Candidates for princess were Suzi Mathews, Lynn McCallister, and Ann Michael.

Music for formal dancing was provided from 9:00-12:00, and later some students came back for post prom activities lasting from 1:30-4:30. A movie, "The Getaway", was shown in the pit for those who felt that it was time to relax. Other energetic people played ping-pong in the main hall. There was more dancing in the gym, but this time more casual. Then, directly after all activities, a breakfast was served in the cafeteria. At the breakfast, doughnuts, eggs, orange juice, and other breakfast foods were served.

Dancing, quiet whispers, and staying out most of the night made a fun, exciting weekend for most everyone, and made the prom memorable for the juniors who sponsored it, and those who attended.

Underclassmen are recognized for outstanding achievement on May 23

For most underclassmen, the school-year does not seem officially ended until the underclass awards are presented on the last day of school. So, on May 23, the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors entered the gym—some with anticipation of winning an award, others with excitement over the ending of school. Many awards were presented and ranged from achievement in academics and athletics to recognition of outstanding service in either the school or community.

Among the major presentations were: Girls' State Awards to Delayne Ray, Kathy Ritz, and Nanette Kelly; Boys' State Awards to Scott Berline and Jim Garner; American Youth Foundation Scholarship to Sally Craig; American History Awards to Cherie Burnett and Greg Williamson; Chemistry I Award to Jay Cotherman; Biology I Award to Laura Nelson; and the Biology II Award to Phil Woodbury.

Senior Awards recognize outstanding students

With the close of the 1974-75 school year, the annual Senior awards were presented. The awards were given at a program held during school hours on May 16, the final day of the senior class' high school life.

Honors were awarded to prominent senior students for their past accomplishments in the areas of academics, athletics, music, and community and school service.

GMI scholarships went to Ray Fish and Jane Heiman; Chris Johnson was named DAR Good Citizen; Lion's Club Sportsmanship Trophy went to Steve Lenz; in the area of music, Roger Manship and Bob Hawkins were presented with the John Phillips Sousa Award; Mike Laird and Sandy Markle were recipients of the P.H.H.S. Citizenship Award for their active role in community and school service.

Alone we dreamed of our last year,
of being a senior and making our mark.

Together we hoped to conquer the world.
We laughed and cried . . . yet always waited.

Alone we pondered graduation,
college tuitions,
uncertain futures.

Together we found friendship and answers and sighed with relief as we shared our worries.

Now we have realized
all things must change.
Our dream has come true.
We are seniors.

But when our senior year
is finally over,
the end of one dream
will begin another.

Class of '75 ends 12 years of high school on May 20

As freshmen, they became acquainted with PHHS. Later, sophomore confusion gave way to junior assurance. Finally, they were the seniors, the class of '75. Throughout the year there was involvement in a flurry of activities: Listening to Elton John, watching "The Trial of Billy Jack" instead of studying for a government test, going to games, joining clubs, choosing the right college, setting a world record, checking second-semester schedules, ordering graduation announcements, taking cap and gown pictures, and attending the Junior-Senior prom.

Twelve years of schooling and an era ended in one ceremony. On May 20, 1975, two hundred ninety-five seniors made their mark as the sixth graduating class from PHHS.

During what had to have been one of the hottest commencement ceremonies, the seniors were reminded of their past good fortune and their present achievements. They were asked to accept the challenges that they would surely encounter after graduation. Ceremonies were concluded with a special candle-light service and reception on the front lawn.

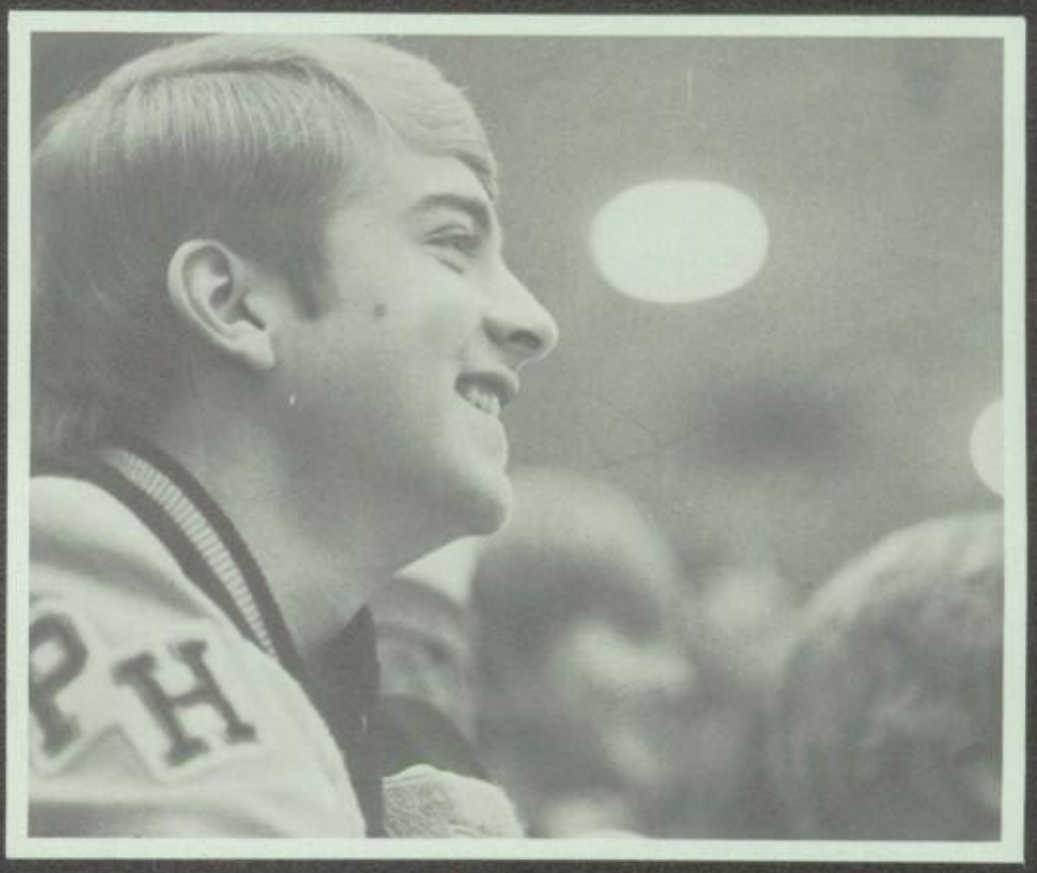
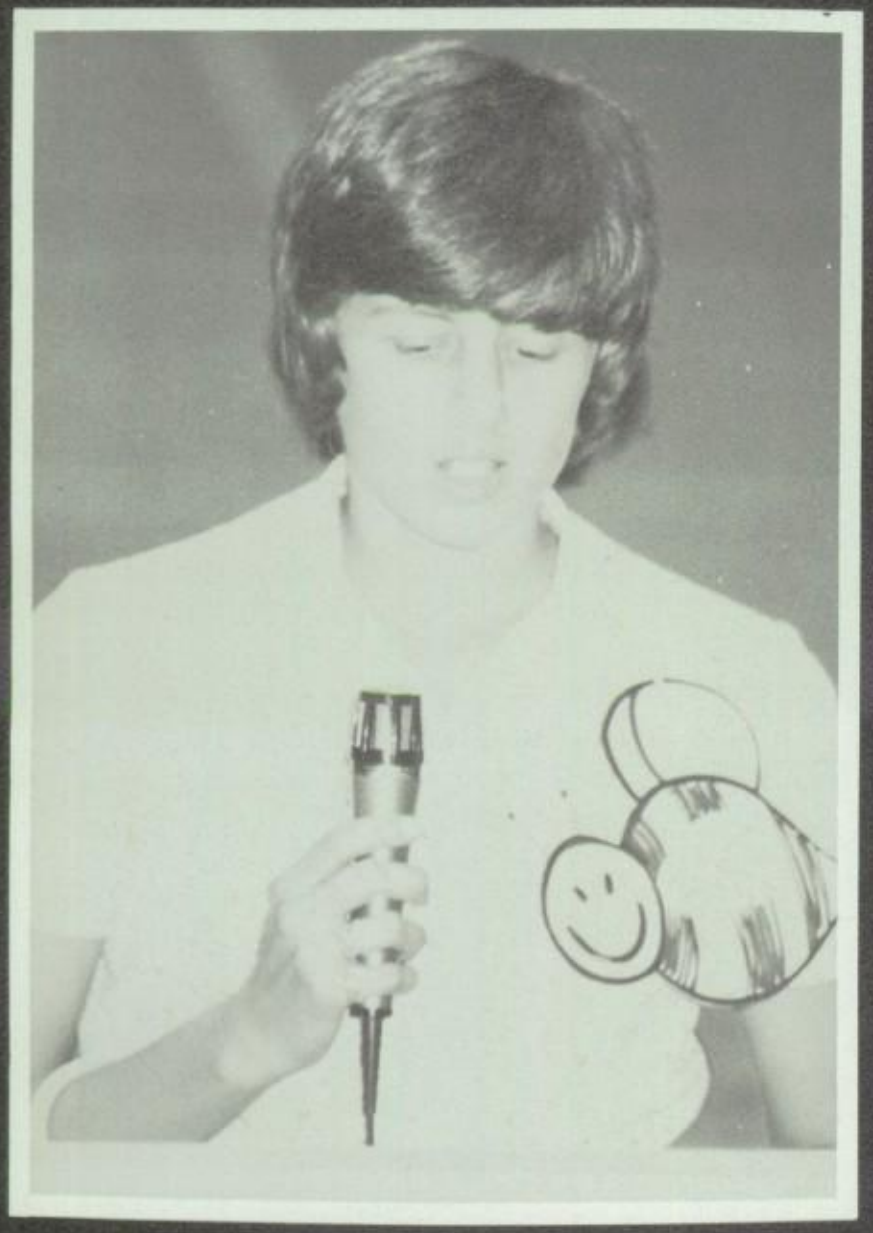
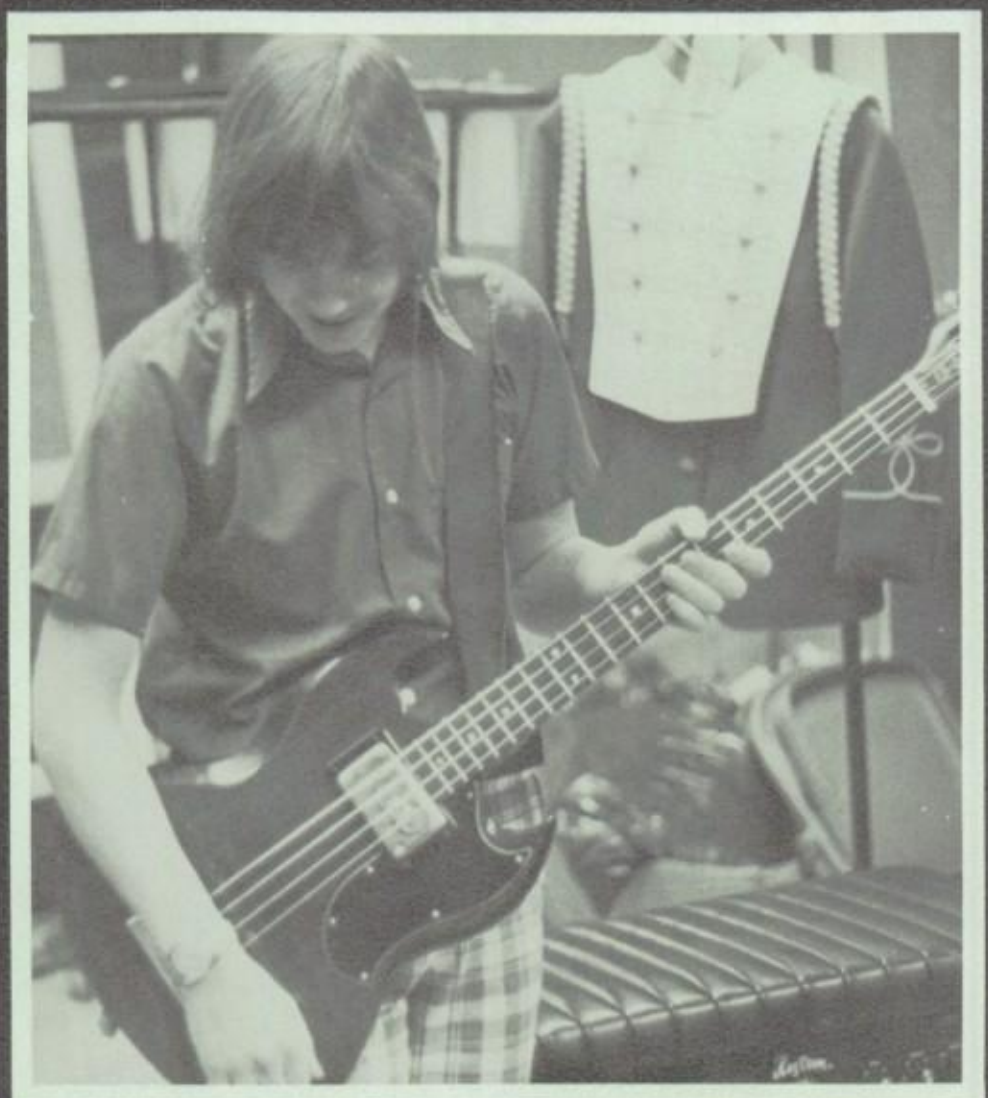
Who's Who at PHHS







Definitions of the different class levels–

SENIOR TERMINOLOGY

Freshmen–Runny-nosed pests that always seem to be getting in your way.

Sophomores–Over-grown freshmen who can often be heard saying, "You think Biology's hard, wait 'til you get to Chemistry!"

Juniors–Over-anxious seniors whose function it is to make sure the sophomores and freshmen don't bother the seniors. Often heard exclaiming, "I'll never make it another year!"

Seniors–The Tops. Those supreme beings who run the school with the exception of a few higher-ranking faculty members.

JUNIOR TERMINOLOGY

Juniors–Extension of the senior class.

Seniors–Those students who seem to think they can get by with anything–and usually do. (Don't knock it, next year's our turn!)

SOPHOMORE TERMINOLOGY

Freshmen–Little kids from Jr. High. (Surely we didn't act that dumb last year!)

Sophomores–Same as juniors.

Juniors–Apprentices to the seniors.

Seniors–Those people who for some reason think they are older and better than anyone else in school. (Usually to be viewed at a distance.)

FRESHMAN TERMINOLOGY

Freshmen–Just like any other big high school student. All high school kids are the same. Very mature and independent.

Sophomores–Same as frosh.

Juniors–Same as frosh.

Seniors–Giants who try to boss you around for no reason at all. Also find great joy in ridiculing freshmen.

The Progression of a High School Student:

1. As a Freshman: I think I'll be an astronaut or maybe a famous surgeon (like the $6 million man or Joe Gannon)
2. As a Sophomore: Maybe I'll choose a field that doesn't require chemistry . . . How about teaching?
3. As a Junior: Gee, maybe I won't go to college at all . . . What about vocational school?
4. As a Senior: If only I wouldn't have messed around in high school, I could've been an astronaut! If everyone else is going to college, I may as well go too. (Hope I get accepted with these grades.)

New additions and adjustments provide qualitative education

The responsibility for providing South Madison Community with a smoothly running school system was that of our new Superintendent, Mr. Earl Cousert and the Board of School Trustees. Mr. Cousert prepared and submitted for Board action a budget of anticipated income and expenditures. In addition, he acted under the authority of and representative of the local Board in providing for the educational needs of the community. He was known for his sincere efforts to provide qualitative education for the students of all South Madison Community schools.

Mr. Charles Mock, business manager, was in charge of all financial matters concerning the school system.

Continously supervising, organizing, and advising, Mr. Ernest Miller, our principal, was responsible for the overall operation of Pendleton Heights High School. Completing his 15th year at PHHS, Mr. Miller participated in all phases of education and welcomed the many students, teachers, and parents who visited him in his office.

Mr. James Kline, the new assistant principal, prepared schedule information for the computer and planned class rescheduling. He was in charge of curricular activities and, several times during the school year, participated in pep rallys, convos, and student meetings.

Mr. James Crosley, administrative assistant principal and athletic director, was in charge of arranging, scheduling, and preparing for all athletic events. Any use of school facilities had to be cleared and checked on Mr. Crosley's calendar. He was in charge of a total of 15 varsity sports, including both boys' and girls' competition and reserve and freshmen levels of participation.

Office personnel and staff together create harmony

Smooth operation of administrative offices and student needs outside of the classroom depended upon the efforts of special school personnel.

Services of the Guidance Department, including Mr. Richard Hoover and Mrs. Elisabeth Croxton, were offered to any student with questions concerning educational, vocational, social or personal interests. Another function of the guidance staff was to aid each student in understanding his abilities, interests, and personality traits through discussion and insight learning.

Also working in the interest of a better learning atmosphere for both the students and faculty were Mrs. Judith Renbarger, Dean of Girls, and Mr. Roger Custer, Dean of Boys. The deans handled disciplinary actions upon the request of classroom teachers.

The school's secretaries did clerical work for the administration. Mrs. Peggy Rogers performed duties as executive secretary, placing all school orders, preparing reports and taking care of office correspondence. Mrs. Vivian Best's job as receptionist and bookkeeper involved working with sponsors and organization treasurers in keeping their bookkeeping records accurate. Teacher's Aide, Mrs. Marjorie Schug, kept records of student attendance and tardy reports. Mrs. Hazel Giering performed duties as the school records clerk as well as acting as secretary of the music department. She spent many additional hours accompanying the PHHS choirs as their pianist. Mrs. Judy Witt helped to organize and take care of sources of information in the materials center as well as typing for teachers and assisting in organizational activities.

Student secretaries offered their study hall and lunch mods to assist office workers. They operated the switchboard, and delivered messages throughout the building. These secretaries assisted teachers too, typing and assembling tests, grading papers and acting as departmental office secretaries.

Most people think that teaching merely consists of standing in front of a class and imparting information about a given subject. Would that that were true! What about the extra-curricular duties, red tape, and all those lengthy forms to be filled out—those from the office downstairs, those from the superintendent's office, those from classroom teachers, those from the yearbook staff (of which this is one), those from the association for one's area of study, etc. Ask any teacher and he will tell you about the countless interruptions that occur during a typical schoolday. At PHHS, we have the 2-beep person, the 3-beep person, and even a 5-beep person. Then there's the familiar "please excuse this interruption" announcement, and the student who comes wandering in searching for another student. Add to this list the unexpected convocations, and one can see why many teachers get gray hairs at an early age.

In spite of all this, there are the rewards which make it all worthwhile and which are the reasons most of us love our work. There's the student who says 'thank you' for the lunch hour you gave up to give him a make-up test. There's the student who always does his assignment well, plus the joy of seeing another student finally do an assignment at all. Extra-curricular duties may at times seem to be thankless tasks, but there's always the fun of getting to know students better and letting them see that you are human and have a heart after all. The supreme reward is in finding those few students who love your subject as much as you do and want to use it in some way in the future.

Whoops! Sorry but I must end this now because my class is calling. No, they don't want me to teach—they just want to tell me how many activities there are tonight and why they shouldn't have to do any homework.

If a student could choose a period in his high school life as the most diversified, it would have to be his senior year. First of all, he had the option of either attending school all day—all year with a regular (or nearly regular) load, or attending for just half a day or graduating mid-term. It was a year when some found it necessary to pick up courses such as chemistry for college, while others chose to "take it easy" by taking only the requirements for graduation and an elective or two. While many seniors found this to be their most important year of school, others discovered that they were increasingly affected by the world outside PHHS. Several seniors held down full or part-time jobs and plans for college or marriage were made throughout the year.

During 1974-75, some relationships were strengthened while others faded, but each of us realized that after commencement was over we would part to begin to make our own way in the real world. We reflected upon our four years at PHHS and recalled with sadness the deaths of our classmates, Greg Cross, Rex McClelland, and Greg McKinney. With their deaths, we began to realize that things might not always turn out as we would like, but we would have to learn to adapt ourselves to the multitude of situations which would confront us throughout our lives.

After having heard about "senioritis" for the past three years, some still didn't really believe that the "disease" would affect them. But a noticeable change in the attitudes of most seniors took place shortly after spring vacation. It was a feeling of boredom with high school life coupled with the anticipation of one's own future. Conflict resulted as students wanted to study less, but realized that they had to keep their grades up for college. Also, it was kind of silly to blow everything after 12 long years, wasn't it?

Well, we made it! Three long years had passed. We made it through the confusion of being a freshman, through the anxiety of trying to sell at least three magazine subscriptions, and even the great hassle of the prom. Finding the right place, the perfect decorations and the favorite refreshments was hard, and how we survived was a mystery.

There were so many things that seemed like a "life or death" matter, but later we looked back and laughed. Maybe it was just knowing that having made it this far we could only agree to stick it out for our "big senior year".

With our spirit, we were just the right group of kids to be given the title, "Spirit of '76". We realized that it couldn't always be seen, but if one looked hard enough he would find that the enthusiasm level ran high in our junior class. Whenever decorating time rolled around at PHHS, the '76er's influence was obvious. We spent many long hours making posters, hanging crepe paper, and as a result of scraping together our last few pennies, were able to produce the longest spirit chain. More than once, our class was the first to be excused from a pep session because we yelled loudest.

Maybe ours wasn't the best magazine sales campaign, the greatest basketball marathon team, or the most organized prom, but we worked hard and were proud to see the results of our efforts. Despite all the history lectures and the confusion of scheduling the four phase–elective courses we wanted, we proved that it was possible for one to survive his junior year.

Then, the question became: were we ready to tackle our final year? Without a doubt, the answer was a definite YES!

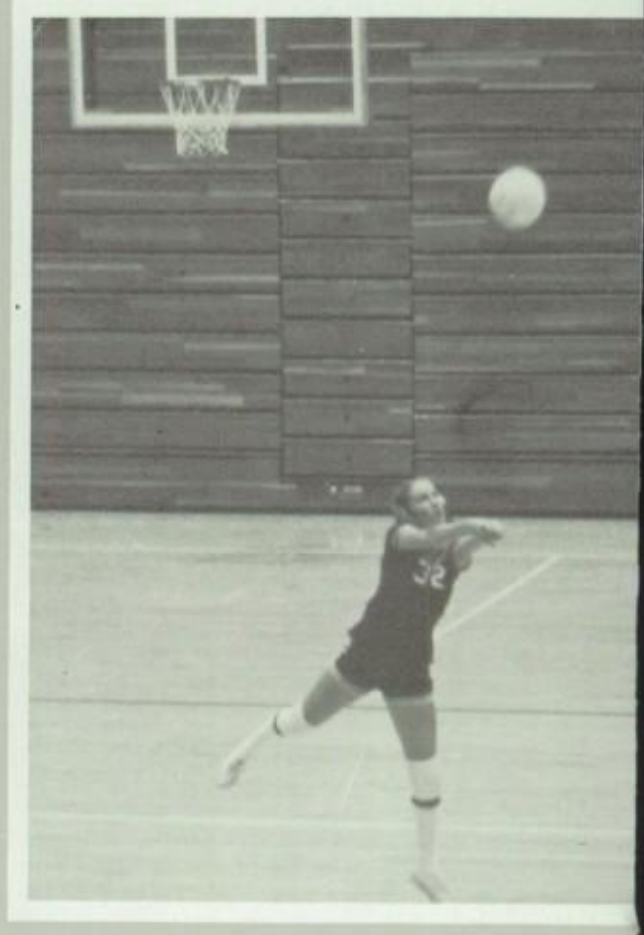
ADULT
VISITORS



By the end of our second year at Pendleton Heights, we had finally settled into our places in High School. After the usual uncertainties of being freshmen, as sophomores, most of us had decided whether to take a passive or active role in high school life.

During the summer before the school year started, the class got together in June for a trip to Cincinati to visit King's Island for the day.

At the start of the school year, we experienced the normal hassles of the classroom. Once settled, we proved to be a worthy class with our Arabian spirit and participation in sports and extra-curricular activities.

Having ordered our class jackets as freshmen, we finally received them in October. We were looking forward to ordering our class rings and did so in November and got them before Christmas in December.

For the first time at Pendleton Heights, a King of Hearts Dance was held--sponsored by the Sophomore class. With refreshments and plenty of good music, everyone who attended seemed to enjoy themselves.

Class officers and sponsors helped to organize the class for projects and money raising activities for next year's major project, the Junior/Senior prom. We began magazine sales in March with everyone interested in working hard for the whole class.

By Spring we were halfway through our high school careers. The future would bring us more homecomings, dances, sales, and projects with our remaining two years of school--years that we could look forward to as probably the best of all.

With junior high years behind us, we stepped into our high school careers. While looking forward to the new experience, we smiled, yet we felt a bit uneasy at the thoughts of older students and questionable stories that we had heard.

When fall began the freshman class showed its enthusiasm by working hard to come up with the first place homecoming float. We became acquainted with Mr. Miller, Mrs. Vendel, and Mr. Childress, our class sponsors.

As winter approached we were finally getting settled into our schedules—until the second semester changes came along. At last we could open our lockers on the first try and were able to go into the restrooms without anyone bothering us.

Springtime not only brought a breath of fresh air but also a renewed enthusiasm for activities. A dance was sponsored in April by our freshman class. We also participated in the Cancer Society Drive just as last year's freshman had done. We resumed everyday classes with our pig dissecting, algebraic expressions, and having to "study" in study hall.

Nine week grading periods, deficiency reports, and short schedule contrasted with our junior high days when life seemed so simple by comparison.

By the end of the year, the freshman blended into the over all scene at Pendleton Heights. The obvious "freshman look" had vanished. Energy levels diminished to the blase sophomore stroll. One freshman had this to say about the ending of his first year at Pendleton Heights: "Then before anyone notices, along comes summer vacation and all of last year's freshmen can't wait 'til next year's freshmen arrive!"

Education is a gas.

It lights up dark places.

It lifts your sights.

It inflates the ego.

Not everybody likes it.

But nobody goes far without it.

And the more you have,
the farther you can go.

We hope you'll keep going with your education. And, when the time comes, you'll think about Delco-Remy as a good place to work.

As another school year draws quickly to a close, we find ourselves reflecting upon 1974-75 with mixed emotions. There were some good times and some not so good times, but as time passes these experiences mellow together to form a single misty memory.

We realize, also, that it must be this way for . . . "the timelessness in us is aware of life's timelessness and knows that yesterday is but today's memory and tomorrow is today's dream."

PHHS
BASKETBALL

The new found freedoms act as nutrients to the seeds that lie dormant beneath the snow. Just as the seeds dream of erupting into their most magnificent form, we dream of spring . . . trust the dream.

"Ready am I to go, and my eagerness with sails full set awaits the wind.

Only another breath will breathe in this still air, only another loving look cast backward.

And then I shall stand among you, a seafarer among seafarers . . ."
